Introduction

Peal tours are less common these days than they were in the twentieth century and it's appropriate to introduce this digital book with a few words about how the East meets West tours began and why they have been an enduring success for more than 50 years. Howard Egglestone, along with John Hunt, Jim Towler and Cyril Wratten, first started to discuss the idea of organising their own peal week during 1967 and 1968, ironically whilst taking part in established tours such as Wratten's Wringers and the Around week. This quartet only rang together occasionally, on ringing weeks such as these, because they lived in different parts of the country, but they obviously got on well with each other and shared similar values and aspirations when it came to peal ringing.

Some of those early peal tours had their fractious moments. The Around week in 1967 involved lots of people, several of whom rang together regularly and were very well-known peal ringers. Howard, John and Jim were comparative newcomers to the tour, and they got the impression that they had been assigned to the 'B' band for the week, whilst the more established regulars formed the 'A' band. Whether this happened intentionally or unwittingly who knows, but it was perhaps not surprising that there was a good deal of interest about how each band was performing and whether their differentiation was justified.

Jim is fond of recalling an incident that illustrates this tension. One evening in the pub, someone who had listened to a peal of Cambridge Maximus that had been rung by the 'A' band insisted that the quality of the ringing compared rather unfavourably with that produced by the 'B' band who had rung Stedman Cinques at Evesham a few days later. Revelling in this unanticipated and rather public validation of the underdogs, some of the Stedman band taunted the clever Maximus ringers about their standard of striking in general and before long (probably within a couple of pints!) quite an argument broke out.

It's fair to say that there were some very opinionated ringers on that tour and it seems that such exchanges were not unusual. However, what was unusual was the incident that involved John Hunt and Wilfred Williams a few years later, again in a pub and again following some less than stellar peal ringing. Amongst other provocations, Wilfred began to condemn John for naming some of his new Surprise Major methods with legitimate place names that had mildly rude connotations, such as Boghole (the name was thrown out by the Central Council and subsequently renamed Looe by John). As the pair of them bickered, the issue of (in)accurate striking cropped up again and others waded in to fuel the dispute. In an atmosphere of rising tension, it's sufficient to say that a box of matches was tossed in the air, along with an invitation to see if a certain ringer could at least strike them properly! Shortly afterwards, a dart got redirected from its intended trajectory towards the dart board to neatly impale Wilfred's pork pie, thus making the point that accuracy is a vital skill for peal ringers.

Having experienced some of the vagaries of those early peal tours, Howard, John, Jim and Cyril agreed to organise their own tour along rather different lines. Howard, in particular, was much inspired by the accounts of Bill Pye's legendary peal tours that ran intermittently from 1901 to 1934. Bill, the finest ringer of his generation, simply surrounded himself with talented ringing friends, took on the vagaries of early twentieth century transport, and rang peals in classic methods on the finest bells in different parts of the country. His band often rang two peals every day for a week and whilst they evidently enjoyed some strong companionship they were principally gathered for high-class ringing.

Using Bill's approach as a template, Howard and John raised a combined band, half from East Anglia where Howard lived, and half from the West Country, which was John's patch. Basing themselves in the Bristol area, the first East meets West peal tour took place in 1969 with, appropriately enough, Howard conducting the first peal and John the second. The foundations for one of the most successful and enduring touring peal bands had been established. It's also worth noting that there was a tangible link with the Pye era, because Jim Pipe, who was born in 1906 and subsequently lodged with Bill Pye for a time and rang four peals with him, took part in the first few East meets West tours.

The tour has continued annually for 55 years, interrupted only by family commitments in 1975 and Covid in 2020. The tours were initially arranged during the summer months but following a series of very hot weeks they shifted to springtime or autumn. These days our preference is for a tour based on a long weekend and rather fewer peals. The only other touring bands that share our longevity are the original Tom Lock Peal Tour that started in 1948 and the Around Tour that began in 1963. Both these bands, like our own, have flourished under various leaders and organisers over the years and continue to this day.

From the outset East meets West has always strived to maintain the highest of standards, combining a careful selection of classic methods on eight, ten and twelve bells with the best of compositions. That Bristol and London on all numbers dominate our repertoire should be no great surprise, whilst compositions by Albert Pitman and Chris Kippin are firm favourites in the Spliced lexicon. Each tour also features two or three rather more obscure or new methods to keep us on our toes. We are also fortunate to have some of the best composers, conductors and ringers amongst our number, such that we enjoy 80-90% success rates decade after decade.

Another feature of the tour is that it has always comprised a relatively small number of ringers, all of whom get on well together and share a strong commitment and loyalty to the enterprise. The four founder members toured regularly for more than 35 years before they were no longer able to do so, whilst the rest of us have typically notched up a similar number of appearances. Remarkably, eight members of the band have each rung well over 200 peals on tour.

If familiarity breeds success, we really have to thank Howard for moulding the East meets West peal tour into its enduring form. From the beginning he was a self-appointed leader and before very long he became affectionally known as the Führer, a nod to the fact that Howard's way was the way it was. Needless to say, that's where any comparisons with a political namesake end. Hand-picked friends ... reliable performers ... the best of bells ... inspired peal ringing ... do these characteristics sound familiar? Both Bill Pye and Howard Egglestone knew a thing or two about peal tours and we can witness their legacy through the pages of this book.

Acknowledgements

Howard Egglestone, Jim Towler and Peter Sanderson all contributed substantially to early compilations of the East meets West peal records. The progressive development of both PealBase and BellBoard has greatly assisted in making these records more complete, consistent and accessible, such that now every peal rung by an East meets West band can be seen on BellBoard and all manner of statistics can be derived from this unique collection by those who wish to do so.

My thanks go to Jane Boden for helping to input data to BellBoard, to Tim Jackson (Dove's Guide) and Sue Hall for creating the cover design, and to Matthew Hilling for producing this attractive digital book which will be regularly updated and maintained for posterity.

East meets West peals

All the peals are listed in the order in which they were rung, organised by date. By clicking on the title 'No:' at the top of each peal the BellBoard entry for that peal appears, in the form that was originally published in The Ringing World. It will contain additional information about whether the peal was credited to a local Guild or Association, rung 'Non Association' or attributed solely to East meets West. Similarly, where footnotes were associated with the peal, they too will be shown. As the BellBoard entries are complete and comprehensive, they can be searched, analysed, and printed at will, but my guess is that most readers will be happy to browse through these pages and simply reflect on past achievements with their friends.
